HISTORICAL MELAKA

Malacca (Malay: Melaka), officially the Historic State of Malacca (Malay: Melaka Negeri Bersejarah), is a state in Malaysia located in the southern region of the Malay Peninsula. Its capital is Malacca City, which has been listed as a UNESCO World Heritage Site since 7 July 2008. Although it was the location of one of the earliest Malay sultanates, namely the Malacca Sultanate, the local monarchy was abolished when the Portuguese conquered it in 1511. Malacca is noted for its unique history and it is one of the major tourist destinations in Malaysia. With a highly strategic state position for international trade routes, Malacca was once a well-known international trade centre in the East. Many traders anchored in Malacca, especially traders from Arabia, China and India, traded at the port of Malacca and from there were born many of the descendants and tribes that exist in Malacca to this day. A great diversity of races and ethnicities have long existed among the local community reflecting its history. Malays, Chinese, Indians, Baba Nyonya, Kristang, Chitty and Eurasians are significant ethnic groups living in the State of Malacca in the present day. The state's name dates to a popular legend surrounding the founding of the Malacca sultanate by Parameswara, who sought a new location to establish a kingdom after fleeing a Majapahit invasion of Singapura. As the story goes, Parameswara was resting under a Malacca tree (Malay: pokok melaka) near a river during a hunt, when one of his dogs cornered a mouse deer. In self-defence, the mouse deer pushed the dog into the river. Impressed by the courage of the deer, and taking it as a propitious omen of the weak overcoming the powerful, Parameswara decided then to found an empire at that spot. He named this empire after the tree where he had just taken shelter.

Another account on the origin of the naming of Malacca elaborates that during the reign of Muhammad Shah (1424–1444), Arab merchants called the kingdom 'Malakat' (Arabic for 'congregation of merchants') because it was home to many trading communities. In 1403, the first official Chinese trade envoy led by Admiral Yin Qing arrived in Malacca. Later, Parameswara was escorted by Zheng He and other envoys in his successful visits. Malacca's relationships with Ming China granted it protection from attacks by Siam and Majapahit. To enhance relations, Hang Li Po, according to local folklore, a daughter of the Ming Emperor of China, arrived in Malacca, accompanied by 500 attendants, to marry Sultan Mansur Shah who reigned from 1456 until 1477. Her attendants married locals and settled mostly in Bukit Cina. In April 1511, Afonso de Albuquerque set sail from Goa to Malacca with a force of some 1200 men and seventeen or eighteen ships. They conquered the city on 24 August 1511. On 14 January 1641, the Dutch defeated the Portuguese in an effort to capture Malacca, with the help of the Sultan of Johor. The Dutch ruled Malacca from 1641 to 1798 and built their landmark, better known as the Stadthuys. In the Dutch era the building was white, the red paint is of later date. Malacca was ceded to the British in the Anglo-Dutch Treaty of 1824 in exchange for Bencoolen on Sumatra. From 1824 to 1942, Malacca was under the rule of the British, first by the British East India Company and then as a crown colony. Due to dissatisfaction with British jurisdiction over Naning, Dol Said, a local chief, fought the East India Company in a war from 1831 to 1832, which resulted in a decisive British victory. It formed part of the Straits Settlements, together with Singapore and Penang. Malacca went briefly under the rule of Empire of Japan in 1942–1945 during World War II. Of the Crown Colony of Malacca between 1951 and 1957. After the war, Malacca was placed under a military administration until 1946. Subsequently, the Straits Settlements was abolished, as the British sought to consolidate the various political entities in British Malaya under a single polity named the Malayan Union. The now separate Crown Colony of Malacca was consequently merged into the Malayan Union, which was then replaced by the Federation of Malaya in 1948. The declaration of independence was made by the first Prime Minister of Malaya, Tunku Abdul Rahman, at Padang Pahlawan in Melaka on 20 February 1956, which eventually led to the independence of Malaya on 31 August 1957. State capital Malacca City was declared a historical city on 15 April 1989 and granted city status on 15 April 2003 by the federal government of Malaysia. The city's historical core was inscribed as a UNESCO World Heritage Site since 7 July 2008. Malacca City . Source : <https://ms.wikipedia.org/wiki/Melaka> dated March 2024

ABOUT TAM

Founded in 1946, The Technological Association Malaysia is an organisation for all levels and disciplines of technologists, from the professionals to students and everyone whose career is technological in nature.

Our association for technologist is intimately concerned with the advances in technological progress as well as the pursuit of knowledge in the field of technology.

The TAM also aims to bring about a clearer understanding and appreciation of technology and to instill among members an impelling desire to achieve professional competence and the highest standard of technological skills.

Having a very wide range of membership, it is the melting pot of technological exchanges amongst members from many walks of life. It provides a forum for discussion, evaluation of technological issues and advances.

THE OLDEST TECHNICAL CIVIL SOCIETY SINCE 1946

The original Association was founded in Kuala Lumpur as far back as 1932, but it was short-lived. It was revived in 1935 & 1937 in Perak & Selangor respectively, and continued to flourish until the Second World War. Immediately after the World War II, attempts were made by the former members to resuscitate the association. Eventually, this led to the formation of The Technical Association of Malaya on 15 April 1946 with registration number, 250 (Selangor). The Technical Association of Malaysia and Singapore had its name change approved as The Technical Association of Malaysia on 11 February 1970. On 22 February 1974, the name was amended to The Technological Association of Malaysia to reflect the multi-professional memberships. A national language name was adopted to become Persatuan Teknologi Malaysia (The Technological Association of Malaysia) on 26 July 1985. Since 24 May 2012, the organisation has been known as Persatuan Teknologi Malaysia (Technological Association Malaysia).

On 23 April 2022, this learned society was verified by The Malaysia Book of Records as “The Oldest Technical Civil Society” since 1946.
